ABOUT PATAN CITY

Our town Patan was formerly known as Anhilpur Patan. It was established on the banks of holy river Saraswati by Vanaraj Chavda in 746 A. D. Let it be proudly mentioned that for a long time (from 746 A. D. to 1304 A. D.) it was the Capital City of a large kingdom extending far beyond the bounds of present day Gujarat under the Solanki Rule. A very important seat of Jain Scholarship, Patan is also a holy land of Hamchandracharya, a great thinker who made valuable contributions to the studies of grammar, literature, religion and philosophy. The Ranki-Vav (unique step-well-World Heritage Place) - a rare piece of architecture and sculptural, the lakes of Sahastralonga and Siddhi Sarovar, the Jain temples of Panchasara and few other monuments in and around the place testify the glory of ancient Patan. Patan is also known for PATOLA, which is unparalleled and original handicraft in the world.
